"It makes one smile," a well-known Southern woman said, in speaking about Mrs. Vanderbilt recently, "to hear-people class her with the houveaux riche. She has the blood of all the Howards in her veites, not that 4 mean she was a Howard, you know, but that is an old English saying, signifying the best of families in Mobile. It wasn't a rich family, but it wasn't money then that gave you position, but grandfathers and grandmothers You can't buy these. People say that Lady Mandeville helped Mrs. Vanderbilt into society that the old Commodore was excluded from, but Lady Mandeville was a Southern girl herself; then she became one of the most powerful society leaders of England."

W. R. Chandler, a son of F. B. Chandler and a member of the firm of Jay & Chandler, 48 Wall street, said:

From Mr. Chandler's remarks the impression was created that if the reports of trouble in the Vanderbilt household were true and Col. Jay was an interested party, he was acting merely as a friend and not as an attorney.

At the New York Central Railroad offices it was learned that both Mr. Depew and Mr. H. C. Duval, his private secretary, are in Europe. Mr. Depew, it is said, may not return for some time. Mr. Du Val is expected back Saturday.

Commissioner Griffin, Dr. Emery's immediate predecessor, who prevented "The Evening World" from relieving the distress of thirty-five people who had been quarantined in a Prospect street tenement, and left with nothing to eat.

During the epidemic of small-pox last Spring, just after Dr. Emery came into office, he took stringent measures to compel the innates of tenements to be vaccinated. By his action he raised a storm of opposition, not only by many citizens, but by some physicians as well. In fact, several doctors got together and formed what was known as the "Anti-Compulsory Vaccination League." It is believed that some of the members of that association are interested in the present movement to oust Dr. Emery from office. The petition for his removal reads in part as follows:

with Joseph Edwards & Co, to relieve the city of its present scarcity of water for $175,090.

The contract is only for furnishing a temporary supply of 25,090,000 gallons of water a day. The machinery and pumps are guaranteed to last a year, when it is hoped, that a permanent water system will be in operation which will relieve the city of amy further possibility of a water famine.

In making the contract, Commissioner White said he did not believe that the driven well system was the best. There were five competitors for the contract, but none of the old time contractors was represented.

The amount of water in all the reservoirs is growing less each day, but within a month it is hoped that there will be added a million or two million gallons to the present supply by a system of driven wells. Justice Beach Modifies the Injunetion Against Whitestone, Dunn was drunk at the time, and bent on having a good time. He playfully caught hold of Salevin's whiskers, and when the later resented the familiarity, gave it several good, stout tugs. Dunn carried off a handful of ital. the roots of which were covered with blood. Dunn then assaulted Salevin and beat him severly.

When arraigned, Dunn denied the charge of assault and said he had never touched Salevin's whiskers. He was held for examination.
